About DARJAZIN

Darjazin rugs are tribal hand woven rugs made in the city of Darjazin in Hamadan province of western Iran. Like Hamadan rugs these are woven from durable local wool and the colors are achieved mostly by using natural dyes. The patterns vary, with many geometric, floral, both and overall Herati designs being used. As these rugs are usually of tribal origin, some have a kilim flat woven end and one end with fringes. These are colorful hardwearing rugs that blend well with traditional and modern decors.
